Speaking on the occasion, Padamvir Singh praised the book and recalled his own experiences of training at the LBS National Academy of Administration, Mussoorie, which he added. Author talked about how tactful handling of human resources can prove to be a boon for various organisations. He also highlighted the topic of competency requirement for particular jobs and raised another topic "where is the good work?"

Author Aparna threw light on three categories of writers. One who aspires to write and someone else publishes the written work, another is self publishing one's own write-up and the third is approached by a publisher to write on the topic. She said, 'I was one among the third category people'.

Session was moderated by Dr Kanchan Bhatia, Professor of HR in BU. Proceedings were conducted by Asma Rizwan. Event was attended by many management enthusiasts, civil servants, and professors, members of Club Literati and members of Bhopal Management Association.
